

SAVED BY AN EMETIC

Charles Bass Relieved of an Over Dose of Laudanum.

ACTIONS WERE MYSTERIOUS

He Walked into Grand-Glenn's Drug Store and Asked for Help, But Would Not Talk.

Last evening about 7 o'clock a man apparently 35 years old walked into Grand-Glenn's drug store and wrote on a piece of paper, "O, God have mercy on my soul, I have taken poison." He appeared to be deaf and the clerk could get no further information as to the condition of the man. The police were informed of the case and the patrol wagon was sent to the drug store and the man was taken to the station. His appearance indicated symptoms of poisoning and Dr. Moffat was called. The man still refused to answer questions from the officers, but kept up a gibberish about taking poison and making signs with his hands. His pockets were searched, but nothing could be found that would lead to his identity. There were several pieces of paper that had been used in carrying on written communications. A small bottle containing a quantity of laudanum was also found among his personal effects. Dr. Moffat examined the man and decided that he had taken an opiate, as the pupils of his eyes were contracted and he was rapidly sinking into a comatose condition. He administered an emetic, which had the desired effect on the patient, who revived from his drooping condition. Later when asked to write, his name he wrote in a business hand the name of Charles Bass, and added that he had no home. He would give no information about taking the drug, and he was retained at the station for safe keeping.

City News in Brief.
It was reported to police headquarters last night that burglars had been frightened from a residence at No. 73 South East street while trying to gain entrance to it. Detective Darr investigated the case but could get no clue to the men.

It is the annual meeting of the bicyclists of the city and ten races have been arranged as follows: One mile sprint, six entries; three mile sprint, thirteen entries; one mile sprint, thirteen entries; one mile sprint, thirteen entries; one mile sprint, thirteen entries; one mile sprint, thirteen entries; one mile sprint, thirteen entries; one mile sprint, thirteen entries.

Off for Indianapolis.
At 7:30 this morning the local Grand Army post, headed by Chas. post, will leave the union depot over the Chicago & West Michigan railroad for Indianapolis to attend the great national encampment which opens there today for a five days session. It is thought about 200 veterans from this city will attend the encampment and many others from the northern part of the state came here yesterday to start with the crowd this morning. Next Friday will be Grand Army day in the city and a large number of Grand Army veterans will return via St. Joseph and go to Chicago Thursday night to attend the great demonstration.

He Kept the Bill.
Frank DeWitt, a painter and decorator, was arrested yesterday by Detective Gaud and Jackson on a warrant for larceny. The complaint was made by Albert Bohl who charges him with stealing $10. DeWitt did some painting for him and when he paid for the job he handed him a ten dollar bill. He would not change the bill and DeWitt would not get it changed. He went away with the bill and Bohl claims he did not return with the change.

Heart on a Toboggan.
May DeWitt, daughter of Frederick DeWitt of Bates street, was seriously injured a few days ago while riding on a toboggan with some boys in the neighborhood. The toboggan was about forty feet long and a rock was tied on which to ride. Little May is but 6 years old, and when she tried the ride for the first time, she became frightened and jumped from the toboggan. She was terribly bruised, and it was feared she was internally injured.

Fire in Ball Park.
Fire ran through the woods yesterday on the Converse eighty, just west of John Ball park, and got a good start in the park. Its progress was checked by the residents in that vicinity before much damage was done, but it was feared at one time that it would become uncontrollable and the whole park would be swept over by the flames.

MIND READING.
It is not a great stride of imagination of the image-making power, or the power to create or reproduce an object of sense previously perceived, the power to recall a mental or spiritual state; that has before been experienced through action, for they speak louder than words. And as imagination bolsters forth, the form of things unknown, the poet's pen turns them to shape and gives to his nation A local habitation, and a name.

—Shel.
Mind is now acknowledged to be the entity of immortal life; it behooves us to be wise to read it through the action of the body. Mind is the principle that causes the body's action or movement; it quickens, makes alive, vivifies or reanimates, an entity it animates the body.

In no age of the world's history has there been such an important discovery. It will clarify the world to us as we read mind. Slowly it will kill evil; crime will be checked out of existence; children will be born pure of mind and grow up in purity. If a man or woman has evil thoughts they can be read, and not be allowed to keep them. Men will shun among his personal effects. Dr. Moffat examined the man and decided that he had taken an opiate, as the pupils of his eyes were contracted and he was rapidly sinking into a comatose condition. He administered an emetic, which had the desired effect on the patient, who revived from his drooping condition. Later when asked to write, his name he wrote in a business hand the name of Charles Bass, and added that he had no home. He would give no information about taking the drug, and he was retained at the station for safe keeping.

This subject is now attracting more attention than at any previous time since the death of Lavater and we hope to see this interest go on increasing till physiognomy shall form a part of the education of every individual. But many still look upon it as a mere fanciful art utterly incapable of being reduced to a scientific formula and fitted only to amuse the idle and the curious. We shall show it is something more than that if not yet entitled to the dignity of a science, it has at least the elements of science in it, and can successfully claim to rank among the useful branches of knowledge.

It is universally practiced. Every body thinks and practices physiognomy, though in most cases without being aware of it. We instinctively, as it were, judge the quality of things by their outward appearance. Appearances are said to be often deceitful. They are sometimes so; but in most cases, if not in all, it is our observation that is in fault. We have but to look again and more closely, and carefully, to pierce the disguise, when the thing will appear to be just what it is. Appearances do not often deceive the intelligent observer. A weak man seldom appears to be strong or a sick man to be well, and a wise man does not look like a fool. We can not possibly conceive of a Webster with the meaningless face and small, backward sloping head of an idiot. The very art of dissimulation, sometimes urged as an objection, is founded on physiognomy; for if a man, by a look, try to appear like an honest man, it is because he recognizes the fact that honesty has a certain characteristic expression, and knows that his fellow men are aware of what that expression is. He hopes to pass off his counterfeit for the real coin which is slightly repulsive.

Men, women and even children make a practical application of physiognomy every day of their lives and in almost every transaction, from the selection of a kitten or a puppy to the choosing of a wife or a husband. When a cartman wants a horse for his team, he never by mistake buys a racer; and the sportsman who is seeking a fox hound can never be deceived into buying of a bull dog. They have not studied physiognomy as a science, but they know that form indicates character. Do you think that if a big, stout, bullet-headed boxer putting on the mark of a gentleman were to offer himself to you as a teacher of dancing or of drawing that you could be induced to imply him in either of those capacities; by no means! You would see at a glance the physiological signs of his real nature, instead of those of his assumed profession. It is not necessary to ask Dinah whether she is accomplished in fine sewing and embroidery or not. It is enough to look at her face or her hands.

We say of one man, "he has an honest look," and we trust him knowing nothing more; but with another, whose appearance is against him, we will have nothing to do. There are those whose faces, though perhaps far from being beautiful, in the ordinary sense of the word, win their way at once to the heart. In the other hand there are individuals from whom the first impression we receive is that of repulsion, if not absolute antipathy. We deduce them, we shrink from them—we know not why. Men take each other's measure when they meet for the first time and every time thereafter. How do they do this? By rapid knowledge even before they speak of each other's power and disposition? One would say that the persuasion of their speech is not in what they say, or that men do not convince by their argument, but by their personality.

Safe, Sure and Speedy.
No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as Alcock's Pore Plaster. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purpose for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for Alcock's and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

UNITY HAS A PASTOR

Dr. H. Digby Johnson Installed With Solemn Services.

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES

Delivered by Eloquent Unitarian Preachers and Prominent Laymen. Dr. Johnson's Responses.

The Rev. H. Digby Johnson was formally installed as pastor of Unity church yesterday, the solemn and dignified services being held in the club house of the Ladies' Literary society. A large congregation was present. The Rev. F. L. Hosmer of Chicago, secretary of the Western Unitarian congress, the Rev. J. T. Sunderland of Ann Arbor and the Rev. F. W. N. Hugenholz, pastor of the Holland Unitarian church in this city, assisted in the ceremonies. The Rev. H. T. Root was unable to be present. The program of the exercises was essentially similar to that published yesterday morning. Dr. Sunderland read the scriptural lesson, and offered an invocation to the throne of grace. E. G. D. Holden, secretary of the board of trustees, read the call and the letter of acceptance. Mrs. L. M. Turner, president of the board of trustees, then delivered an eloquent address welcoming the pastor to his new charge. She paid a tribute to the devotion and sacrifice of the pastor, but insisted that these alone are insufficient to give him the influence and power that should be his. His faith and enthusiasm, she held, are far more potent in bringing to the souls of men the peace and good will that are the grandest blessings to humanity.

The charge to the people was delivered by Dr. Sunderland, who urged faithfulness at all times to the pastor. It is not his work, but their work, and they, of all others, should feel the sense of responsibility. Dr. Sunderland eulogized the Unitarian creed, and paid a tribute to its place in the great evolution of religious thought.

Dr. Hosmer's Sermon.
Dr. Hosmer, who delivered the morning sermon, took his text from John xiii-3, "Blessed are they that hear, and will speak; I will demand of thee and declare thou unto me. I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear, but now mine eye seeth thee." The theme of the sermon was that the things which are spiritual are far greater than the things that are temporal; that the things which seem to be more potent than the things seen, even though we do not appreciate their influence and effects. The conventionalities of life are not to be disregarded, but their influence is passing. They are only the reflection of the great hidden forces. We conform to them, but they are of little importance in comparison with the great truths which lie unseen. He, too, eulogized the Unitarian faith, unimpaired, as he said, by any creedal boundaries, and limited only by the possibilities of the human soul. The benediction was pronounced by the newly installed pastor.

At the evening service, the Rev. F. W. N. Hugenholz read the scripture lesson and offered the prayer. Dr. Sunderland delivered an impressive charge to the pastor, reminding him of the magnificent possibilities for good in the calling and the uncertainties of influence of his work. The Rev. H. Digby Johnson then delivered an address to the congregation. He said he didn't come as an ethical teacher; nor as a sociological leader; nor as a professor of literature; but as a religious teacher. By religion, he meant the things which, new, meekness, goodness, mercy and love, as applied to business, politics, domestic life and in the fields of industry. He said his motto is "I serve," and he hoped to devote his life in the service of these.

Beautiful teeth are a luxury few possess. We have heard people say they would give anything they had for such beautiful teeth as we had.

The secret is not so much in the perfection of the teeth as in the snow like whiteness of the brilliant polish.

All teeth are capable of this with proper care. Whiteness and polish should be avoided, as they are injurious as are also many of the powders. A properly prepared powder, however, is the only right and perfect thing to cleanse and preserve the teeth. This we have succeeded in producing after much labor and expense. The formula is by one of the most skilled dentists of this country and is absolutely perfect.

REPIDITA—is the name we have adopted for it, and we are the exclusive owners and manufacturers. We guarantee Repidita to be the only perfect tooth powder on the market. That it will prevent decay and render the teeth more beautiful with less trouble than any other preparation to be had.
